

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

been the formation of the present committee and its organization as a working body with an executive sub-committee and a secretary. The Committee is representative not only of Harvard College, Simmons College and the Museum, but of State agencies of instruction and of the ladies among whom the movement originated, and who have thus far carried it on. It opens a new field of influence to collections of art in New England, and one about whose future fruitfulness there can hardly be question.

Mr. M. S. Prichard has resigned his position as Bursar of the Museum, and will devote himself wholly to the affairs of the Committee whose organization and plans have just been described. Through Mr. Prichard's retirement, the Museum loses an able and zealous officer, whose influence has been strongly felt in all its concerns, and whose coöperation will be welcomed in extending the scope of its influence.

Handbook of the Museum.

A HANDBOOK of the Museum has just been published and is on sale at the door. Price in paper cover, 25 cents; in cloth, 50 cents: postpaid, 30 cents and 60 cents.

The handbook is a 16mo volume of 204 pages, containing 183 illustrations of objects arranged according to departments of the Museum, its aim being to serve both as an introduction to the collections and a souvenir of them. Each illustration is accompanied by a title or a descriptive text, and a few words about each department introduce the illustrations referring to it. The closing pages of the volume give information as to the organization and history of the Museum, with a list of its publications and other data, and contain a view of the building, a plan of the offices, and a map showing the site of the new Museum. Plans of the galleries are printed on the inside of the front and back covers, this position being chosen for convenience of consultation. The rooms forming a single department are given a distinctive color, showing at a glance the limits of the collections; and directions to visitors are printed below. The volume is of a size to be conveniently carried in the pocket, and in cloth binding forms a substantial book.

The handbook is not a catalogue of the collections. Its purpose is to give a general knowledge of the Museum and its contents, and a closer acquaintance with a number of objects uniting special interest with adaptability for illustration. For each of these, data are supplied which will contribute to its understanding and an illustration which will help recall it to memory. For information about the remaining original objects in the Museum the visitor is referred to the labels and descriptive cards to be found with them. The collections of casts from antique and modern sculpture are already fully described in the Catalogue of casts from Greek and Roman sculpture, and the Manual of Italian Renaissance Sculpture, also on sale at the door.

A general introduction or guide to the whole Museum has often been asked for by visitors, and it is hoped that the present handbook may acceptably meet this need. The preliminary edition, which was prepared for the Convention of the American Medical Association has since been exhausted. In future editions it will be sought to improve and enrich the present volume.

Notes.

SINCE THE OPENING of the Exhibition of Early American Silver in the Textile Gallery the desire has frequently been expressed that the exhibition should have its permanent memorial in the form of an illustrated catalogue. The quality and variety of the work of early American silversmiths have been set in a clear light by the effort to bring together a representative selection of their work. The announcement is made with pleasure that with the aid of Mr. John H. Buck of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and through the generosity of Messrs. R. T. H. Halsey, of New York, and George L. Palmer, of New London, Conn., such a catalogue is in process of preparation, and it is hoped will be issued in a few days. It will form an octavo volume containing about fifty full page illustrations, several of them photogravures. The introduction and descriptive text are the work of Mr. Buck, aided by Mr. Halsey, who has supplied many hitherto unpublished data obtained from contemporary publications. The price of the catalogue will be $2.00 (postpaid, $2.20). An edition without illustrations will be sold for $0.50 (postpaid, $0.60).

THE INSTALLATION of the Exhibition of Early American Silver in the Gallery of Textiles has necessitated the temporary removal of many of the previous exhibits to the Textile Room (No. 14) in the basement of the building, where they will be shown to any visitors desiring to see them.

DURING THE FOUR SUMMER MONTHS from June 1 until October 1, the Library and the offices of the Print Department are closed on Saturday at one o'clock.

A RECEPTION TO THE MEMBERS of the American Medical Association attending the Convention in this city June 5 to 8, and to their invited guests, was held in the Museum on Tuesday evening, June 5, from 8.30 until 10.00. About eight hundred persons were present.

MR. J. B. POTTER, Keeper of Paintings, has been granted leave of absence from the Museum during the latter part of the summer for the purpose of study in the museums of the Low Countries and at Madrid. Mr. Potter expects to leave about the middle of August to be gone until December 1.